

In New Jersey, over 2/3 of the residents took the time to register for Do Not Call, which is much higher than the number who vote in a Presidential election. That alone should tell you how much of a problem the telemarketers created, and how important this law is.